Gun Crews Saw No U-Boats, but Shot Many Barrels Into Pieces.

PASSENGERS AT EASE

Didn't Know America Was at War Until They Reached Quarantine.

The American liner St. Louis, first of Yankee passenger carriers to defy Ger man war sone regulations since the severance of diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States, completed yesterday her round trip between this port and England.

She had the American flag emplazoned her sides and the naval Lieutenant charge of the gun crews suggested that this was an invitation to German submarines to smuch the liner. Nothing happened to her either going to or coming from the British port that welcomed her and gave her godspeed. Thinking of the conspicuousness of the ship as a target the bluejacket gunners practised at barrels cast overboard on the voyage and hit every barrel. They would have Stars and Stripes and the Unwelcomed a submarine to smite, but none

The ban on wireless was temporarily lifted when the St. Louis was east of Nantucket on Saturday. She then got a radio message saying that there was a suspicious vessel, supposed to be a of Ontario, as principal guest, given at German raider, in the course of the liner the Biitmore.

Hartley of Jersey City, who was not prediction that Americans will play their less nonchalant and American than the part in the conflict as valiantly as the part in the conflict as valiantly as the gallant Canadian soldiers, the 450 diners jacket gun crew, naturally took heed, but proceeded fearlessly. He saw no raider, but did meet off Nantucket the awift cruiser Birmingham, looking out for enemy vessels.

Capt. Hartley exchanged salutes with the Birmingham, whose existence at sea was not known hereabout until yesterday, and told the Birmingham that he had seen nothing to be concerned about. The impression of the St. Louis's trayet.

Seven Inches of Snow Calls Out Fetherston's Dusters.

April proved her right to her title as the most erratic of spring months, by arraying herself in the discarded robes of winter yesterday and posing as a snow girl. The snow shovellers of Com-missioner Fetherston were hastily musbetween 9:35 P. M. Sunday and 7:35 A. M. yesterday, but the ardent sunshine took the job off the hands of the Fetherston forces and before nightful the aidewalks and streets were nearly clear. It was a fine wintry day all right, with a minimum temperature of 75 and 15 minimum temperature of 25 at with a minimum temperature of 25 at 8 A. M., which is only five less than the minimum for April in this neighborhood, recorded away back in 1874. The cause of the trouble was a cyclone that was central off Hatteras on Sunday night and last night, after swirling swiftly up the coast, was central off the northern New England coast. New Engiand coast. It dragged down from the frosty northwest frigid temperature and a gale of fifty-five miles that carried away some flagpoles spreading the colors of Uncle Sam. It should be clear and cool to-day. Maybe before sunrise the temperature will get pretty close to the low April record of 20.
